Doctor Sought After Girl's Body Is Found

Prominent New York Physician Hunted In 3 Countries

NEW YORK (AP) — A police alarm spread to Canada and Mexico in a search for a Queens physician after the dismembered body of a girl was found in the sewer of his sumptuous home and office.

However, authorities fear he may have fled to Cuba with which this country no longer has an extradition treaty.

Lothringer Miss Lofrumento
The victim, identified as Barbara Lofrumento, 19, had been cut up by scalpel and a power saw, apparently after an abortion.

"It must have taken him many hours," Asst. Medical Examiner John Furey said Thursday.

The missing man, Dr. Harvey Lothringer, 41, disappeared last Sunday, some hours after the girl was brought to his office by her mother.

Theresa Carillo
The doctor's receptionist, who also is missing.

Police departments of Canada and Mexico are on the lookout for Lothringer. The elder Lothringer is a retired physician — has a hunting lodge about 60 miles north of Montreal. Police said a sister, not further identified, was thought to be in Mexico City.

Miss Carillo is a Cuban national. As hostess, her National Airlines run was to Cuba and her mother is said to live in Havana. Since no diplomatic relations exist between the U.S. and Castro's Cuba, any inquiries would have to be made by the State Department.

Appleton Planner Wants Regional Highway Commission For Right-of-Way Acquisition

Formation of a Fox Valley regional highway commission, to be responsible for acquisition of rights-of-way and construction of a system of freeways and expressways throughout the area, was urged Thursday night by Walter C. Rasmussen, Appleton city planner-traffic engineer.

Rasmussen told the Fox Valley Regional Planning Commission, meeting at Grand Chute Town Hall, that implementation of the commission's proposed regional thoroughfare plan will be impossible without such a regional authority, operating along the lines of the State Highway Commission.

At its May 24 meeting the planning commission's thoroughfares committee unanimously approved the thoroughfare plan, subject to some modifications, and urged member municipalities to adopt official maps for their areas to preserve land needed for right-of-way.

The plan — drawn up by Kenneth L. Schellie and Associates in consultation with engineers of the State Highway Commission — calls for two major inter-city roads, linking valley municipalities.

One of the roads, U.S. 41, would constitute an inter-regional freeway along the northern boundary of the system. It is visualized as a closed thoroughfare, without access from adjoining roads in the system.

The second major road, an eastward extension of College Avenue as a primary arterial street, from Christine Street to State 55, would constitute an expressway. Designed to provide relatively high-speed movement, the expressway would not be a consistently closed system, but would be supplemented by arterial highways, feeder and collector streets.

"The thoroughfare plan is subject to detailed survey and inspection," Kenneth L. Schellie told the commission. "It is not a road program dictating that municipalities must go out and build immediately. It shows carriers we should have to carry traffic in the area. If we don't pinpoint routes now, it may be impossible later to get them."

Clarence Brownson, Outagamie county highway commissioner and chairman of the thoroughfares committee, said it was important that action be taken soon on the expressway. He said the highway commission is now doing preliminary engineering on the extension of College Avenue to State 55.

"We want these locations open for highway construction when needed," he declared.

L. W. Empey, district engineer for the State Highway Commission, told the planning group the thoroughfares plan provides "corridors" indicating the approximate location of the proposed roadways. He said an "immense amount of

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union warned the Western powers today it will not permit West Berlin to continue as a base for what it called "revengist and militaristic circles."

A note to Britain, France and the United States threatened that "The Soviet Union will not hold the position of a disinterested observer and, in case of necessity, may be compelled to take the needed measures to fulfill its commitments to the 'East German Democratic Republic,' which is an ally of the Soviet Union."

Onetime Secretary to Harding Dies at 77

CHICAGO (AP) — Mrs. Flora E. Whetstone, secretary to Warren G. Harding before he became president, has died in Elkhorn, Wis., friends said Thursday. She was 77.

Mrs. Whetstone, who lived in Chicago, entered Lakeland Hospital in Elkhorn four weeks ago for treatment of leukemia, a form of cancer of the blood. She died Wednesday.

She was Harding's secretary when he served in the Ohio State Senate and later was an executive of a chemical company in Chicago.

Senate Votes $4.7 Billion Ceiling on Aid

Modifies Ban on Assistance to Communist Nations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has voted a $4.7-billion ceiling on foreign aid spending next year — just about what President Kennedy requested.

But there's evidence Congress intends to slash away at the aid program before it finally provides the money that may be spent.

The measure passed Thursday by the Senate 61 to 23 simply sets limits on aid spending in the fiscal year that begins July 1. The appropriations will be handled later in separate legislation.

Wisconsin's senators voted with the majority on the aid authorization bill. Earlier they had split, Wiley for and Proxmire against the amendment restoring presidential authority to ship surplus food to Yugoslavia and Poland.

Actually, the administration had to settle for partial victory on its embattled provision for aid to Communist Poland and Yugoslavia in an attempt to wean them away from Soviet domination.

Measure Amended

Wednesday the Senate voted 57 to 24 to bar foreign aid to such countries. But, with heavy pressure from the White House and combined appeals from Democratic and Republican leaders, the Senate retreated Thursday and voted 56 to 34 to exempt gifts and sales of surplus food.

It still left the ban on any assistance under the foreign aid bill itself, including $10 million in economic development loans the administration had programmed for Yugoslavia next fiscal year.

At his news conference Kennedy welcomed the action on food saying it would give him the necessary flexibility to help peoples who want to remain independent.

Proposed Change Defeated

Only a short time later administration forces succeeded by the narrow vote of 45 to 40 in rejecting an amendment by Sen. Norris, D-N.H., which would have denied foreign aid to countries which export arms or strategic materials to Sino-Soviet bloc countries, including Cuba.

No attempts were made to cut

U. S. Destroyer Goes Aground in Windstorm

NICE, France (AP) — The destroyer Sumner, serving with the U.S. 6th Fleet, grounded in a high windstorm Thursday night. The 2,200-ton ship, off Golfo Juan, dragged its anchor and ran into rocks about 50 yards from shore. Navy auxiliary craft began work at dawn to tow it back into deep water.

Airs 5-Point Package for Coming Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy pins his strategy for prosperity on a five-point tax package that includes across-the-board income tax cuts starting next January.

"There is no need for this country to stand helplessly by and watch a recovery run out of gas," Kennedy told his news conference Thursday.

"We have a program to boost it and I hope that all those who are concerned about their stocks or their profits or their jobs will help us get action on this program," he added.

Thus inviting public support, including support from critics who contend administration policies upset the stock market, Kennedy urged Congress to get down to business quickly on his proposals.

Plans Party Speeches

Tax talk highlighted the news conference in which Kennedy snapped back at Republican detractors and said he would take the stump for Democratic candidates in the November elections.

He made clear the administration does not intend to recommend an immediate cut in income taxes. But he said he will offer a tax reform bill providing reductions in both personal and corporate income taxes, effective Jan. 1, for congressional action next year.

Details are being worked out, he said, but will result in a net loss—the reductions "will not be wholly offset by other reforms."

Goal Won't Be Reached

Kennedy conceded his goal of a $570 billion gross national product, the value of the nation's output, probably will not be achieved this year. The stock market decline won't help, he said, but adoption of his tax package would improve chances "of being close."

He listed these other points in the program:

The House-passed tax credit for

Ralph Admits He and Aide Received $400 From Estes

Dismissed Counsel Says Many Others Received Money Orders

WASHINGTON (AP) — James T. Ralph, former assistant secretary of agriculture, testified today he received two $100 money orders from Billie Sol Estes last January and his assistant, William E. Morris, got two more—a total of $400.

On the heels of this testimony, Robert E. Manuel, dismissed Republican counsel to the House subcommittee investigating the Estes case, charged that numerous others also received such money orders—including some members of Congress and at least one "very high ranking administration official."

U. S. to Help Plan Use of Bong Base

MADISON (AP) — Gov. Gaylord Nelson said today that the state will receive a $30,000 Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency grant to complete a comprehensive plan for use of the abandoned Bong Air Base in Racine and Kenosha counties.

Nelson said that the planning application had been presented by himself and David Carley, director of the Department of Resource Development March 30. The resource office will conduct the planning program.

"Plans for acquisition of the base are moving rapidly," Nelson said, "and by the time the state and several local municipalities have acquired the land, a plan for development of the base will be completed."

The Governor said Carley would get the planning program under way before he left state service.

Complete analysis of the region's population, economy, land use and transportation will be the goal of the study, followed by a detailed plan for development of the base area. Nelson expressed hope the entire area would be fully out of federal control by early 1963.

Trial Examiner Rules Unions Can Impose Production Curbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government trial examiner ruled today that labor unions can impose production curbs on members—and enforce them with fines and even expulsion—without violating the federal labor laws.

A. Norman Somers, an examiner for the National Labor Relations Board, said the federal laws are silent on the subject, purposefully so he thought, leaving union disciplinary powers subject to state laws and policies.

Somers ruled in a case brought after four employees of the Wisconsin Motor Co., West Allis, Wis., were fined from $50 to $100 each for violating production ceilings established by Local 283 of the United Auto Workers, and the union sued to collect the fines in the Wisconsin courts.

Friction Abroad for U. S.

South Korea and South Viet Nam Make Things Tough for Servicemen

BY KEYES BEECH
Chicago Daily News Service

TOKYO — Friction between foreign troops—regardless of whether they come as friends or enemies—and local populations is as old as war but that doesn't make things easier for the United States in Asia this week.

In two widely separated but equally vital areas—South Korea and South Viet Nam—the United States was having trouble with its allies.

In Saigon the problem stemmed from a ban on dancing. In Seoul friendly feelings were strained by a now painfully familiar incident, the beating of a would-be thief by American servicemen.

Students Protest

The stern high-minded military junta ruling South Korea stooped to a favorite tactic of the late despised Syngman Rhee regime to express its displeasure with the United States.

This was the "spontaneous" demonstration. More than 1,000 Korean university students went martial.

on parade to demand a "status of forces" agreement giving Korea the right to try American servicemen for crimes against Korean citizens.

Seoul police barred the students from reaching the American embassy and more than 200 were temporarily detained. But South Korea's strongman ruler Gen. Chung Hee Park said all good Koreans sympathized with the students' feelings even though the demonstration was "unbecoming."

What Park didn't say was that the demonstration never would have taken place if the army had wanted to stop it. Both Ambassador Samuel D. Berger and Gen. Guy S. Meloy Jr., U.N. command, had formally apologized for the beating before the demonstration took place.

Moreover two American officers involved in the beating have been relieved of duty and confined to quarters pending a possible court martial.

Gronouski Asked to Quit By Newspaper

MADISON (AP)—The Wisconsin State Journal, Madison's morning newspaper, called today for the resignation of John Gronouski, state tax commissioner.

Gronouski, member of the state Democratic party's platform committee, called a news conference Thursday and said he favored repeal of the state's selective sales tax. The platform committee earlier called for repeal of the tax law.

A State Journal editorial said Gronouski has been a "practicing politician ever since Nelson appointed him to the commissioner's job."

It added: "Gronouski's predecessors, over the years, have collected taxes and enforced the tax laws—and spoke only when spoken to on the subject of tax policy. It is an administrative job, not one of deciding how taxes should be raised. That is for the governor and the Legislature to work out."

"But since Gronouski has put himself deep into partisan politics—a move which in this case has him bumping heads with the man who appointed him—he has only one sensible remedy: resign."

The State Journal generally reflects the Republican viewpoint.

Two More Men Arraigned on Gambling Counts

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The last two of five men indicted on gambling charges by a federal grand jury were arraigned on Thursday.

Raymond L. Mirr, 50, of Wauwatosa, and Raymond C. Hobert, 46, of Milwaukee, appeared before U. S. Commissioner John C. McBride and were released on bond of $1,000 each.

Mirr was charged on two counts of failing to pay a special occupational tax on wagers, Hobert on one count of the same charge. The other three were arraigned and released on bond earlier.

East Germans Make Daring Escape in Boat

Dramatic Flight to Freedom by 13 Made Under Hail of Gunfire

BERLIN (AP)—Bringing a baby with them, 13 young East Germans hijacked a 500-ton river excursion boat early today and escaped to freedom under a hail of machine-gun bullets.

East German police, firing from a watch tower, a pier, a bridge and a patrol boat, pumped over 200 bullets into the fleeing vessel. Nobody was hurt.

West Berlin police fired 10 shots back at the East Germans to check their fire. The boat, the Friedrich Wolf, was riddled and there were bullet marks on buildings on the West Berlin shore.

Planned for Week
The escapees included eight men, all employees of East Berlin's "white fleet" of excursion boats, five women, and one couple's 5-month-old boy. The adults, all about 30 or under, told police they had been planning the escape for a week.

Thursday night the men in the group went aboard the Friedrich Wolf at her mooring beside the River Spree and began drinking with her captain and engineer. When the two were off guard, they jumped them and tied them up.

Under cover of darkness they spirited their women and the baby aboard. Then at dawn the men got the two-deck boat moving.

Police Open Fire
They swung into the Spree and headed toward the center of Berlin, making for the point where the left bank of the river becomes the border between East and West Berlin.

Posts of Vopos — as the East German police are called — opened fire.

Racing the engines at their top speed of 10 knots, the men aboard the Friedrich Wolf suddenly swung left and rammed the boat into the entrance of the Landwehr Canal — Western territory.

The escapees, moving quickly in twos and threes, sprang ashore. They flung themselves to the ground to escape the whipping bullets. When the West Berlin police fired, the Vopos checked their fire.

The whole thing was over in 20 minutes.

The boat's captain and engineer were allowed to get the boat under way and return to East Berlin.

More Influence Than Aid

U. S. Stand on German Issue Vital to Poles

BY GENE KRAMER

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—The United States can influence Poland's Communist government more by siding with it on German issues than it can by economic aid.

Polish officials would particularly welcome U.S. recognition of Polish sovereignty over the pre-war German territory Poland has occupied since World War II.

With great passion, Poles argue that the United States has completely forgotten the war and is gambling blindly with its support of West Germany.

No Reaction
There has been no official reaction here to the Senate vote Wednesday to ban aid to Communist-dominated countries or to the Senate's modifying action Thursday.

It is hard to measure the amount of leverage on Poland's Communist government the United States has achieved in exchange for the half billion dollars worth of food and other aid it has given Poland since 1957. Many Americans consider it woefully small.

But it is generally agreed that if the United States gives no aid to Poland, Wladyslaw Gomulka's regime will pay far less attention to America's desire that the Poles

U. S. Awards $20,000 To Jane Froman for War-Time Injuries

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Court of Claims ruled Thursday that singer Jane Froman and two other wartime troop entertainers injured in a 1943 plane crash overseas should receive $20,000 each from the federal government.

The ruling was requested by Congress, which asked the court to determine how much should be paid. Congress will have to appropriate the money.

Miss Froman and the two other entertainers, Gypsy Markoff and Jean Rosen, were aboard a commercial plane which crashed near Lisbon, Portugal, with a loss of 23 lives. They were badly injured.

The court said that while none of the entertainers has any legal claim they are entitled under broad and equitable considerations to $20,000 each.

Carpenter, 37, received a standing ovation from the 316 seniors and 2,500 relatives and guests.

The hometown hero, who two weeks earlier orbited the earth, said: "Going to the moon is no longer fantasy. There's a slight chance that men my age might someday be on the moon. Possibly people of your age will land not on the moon, but on the moons of Mars, and then on Mars itself."

Arguments on State's School Consolidation Law In Court Today

Constitutionality of Measure Challenged by Two Petitions

MADISON (AP)—The Wisconsin Supreme Court hears arguments today on the constitutionality of the state's school consolidation law that requires all territory in Wisconsin to be included in a district operating a high school by June 30.

The school committees of Iowa, Lafayette, Rock and Green counties are answering petitions attacking the right of the committees to issue consolidation orders. Under terms of the 1959 law, after June 30 the county committees are required to issue orders consolidating any territory still outside a high school district.

Two Petitions
There are two separate petitions challenging the law's constitutionality. One was filed by four Dodgeville taxpayers against the school committees of Lafayette and Iowa counties.

The committees have proposed to dissolve the Governor Dodge School District, Joint School District No. 14 of the Townships of Mineral Point, Dodgeville and Wadsworth in Iowa County. It is proposed to join a part of District 14 to District 1 of the City of Mineral Point and the remainder to District 1 of the City of Dodgeville.

The four who petitioned the high court to declare the law void and prohibit the consolidation order are Charles Rolfe, LeRoy D. Phillips, John B. Hale and Charles M. Goldthorpe.

In the second petition the towns of Avon and Newark and Mrs. John Sahy of Brodhead have asked the court to prevent the Rock and Green County School committees from attaching District 3 of Avon and Newark.

As the court considered the question, the State Department of Public Instruction said consolidation orders continue to be received at a rapid pace. There are now only 1,129 school districts in the state and the department expects that by the June 30 deadline there will be only 851 districts. In 1948 there were 6,045 districts in Wisconsin.

Kennedy's Proposed Tax Cut Would Have Effect of Pay Raise

President's Advisers Talking About $5 Billion Net Reduction

BY STERLING F. GREEN
WASHINGTON (AP)—The tax cut proposed by President Kennedy for next Jan. 1 would have the stimulative effect of a multi-billion dollar pay raise for wage earners and a profits boost for industry.

Kennedy's advisers are tentatively about a $5-billion net reduction in the tax package the President will ask Congress to reinforced the decision to cut as well as reform. Its symptoms of nervous distress also advanced the date on which the big tax overhaul would take effect.

Snail's Pace
Originally it was believed that Congress — which historically moves at a snail's pace on tax legislation—would take all next session and quite possibly part of the 1964 session in dealing with massive overhaul. Tax relief would have waited.

Now Kennedy has announced his willingness to cut taxes only six months and three weeks from today. The bill will be sent to the Capitol this summer; it will be weighed and argued throughout the congressional election campaign. It will be waiting for enactment, with a retroactive date of Jan. 1, as soon as Congress can handle it after convening in January.

By his announcement Thursday, Kennedy may have quashed the demands of some Congress members for an emergency, quickie tax cut while achieving virtually the same effect—assuring workers and business managers that their take-home pay will be bigger and their after-tax profits larger, only a few months from now.

Estimates of the net tax relief are running as high as $7 billion. Five billion is more frequently mentioned, as being about the minimum cut which would make enough difference in consumers' paychecks to encourage purchases of new cars, homes and major appliances.

Tax Cut Lone Exception

Despite Dip in Market, Kennedy Standing Pat

BY JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has made it clear—at his first news conference since the shocking stock market dip May 28—that he is standing pat.

With one exception—a promise to ask Congress for an income tax cut for everyone but not effective before next year—he is offering no new proposals to juice up the economy.

This is the position he takes:

1. Stock market prices were too high anyway and figured to dip a bit.
2. Improved Economy
3. The economy—although it could be better—is sound and should continue to improve.
4. He is not going to be stampeded into emergency actions. He is simply asking Congress to put through proposals he made before the stock market dive. He will make a new proposal on the income tax cut later.
5. He will insist—despite protests by some business leaders—that prices and wages be kept down to prevent inflation. It was his previous insistence on this that brought on the steel dispute.

At Thursday's news conference, he rejected any thought of excited reaction to the stock market with this statement:

Overpriced Market
"I think most financial experts have realized for some time, that an overpriced market could not hold up once investors recognized that inflation was ended."

This was a reminder that he had laid down his national anti-inflation policy last spring when he pressured the steel industry and the steel union into a settlement without wage or price boosts.

His purpose: To call a halt to the endless spiral of rising wages and prices.

Kennedy's optimism about steady improvement in the economy reflected the optimism of his own advisers whom he consulted in a special meeting the morning after the market plunged.

He said Thursday:

Favorable Prospects
"While our recovery from last year's recession has been a good one, production, profits and employment are at all time highs, and the prospects for continued economic expansion remain favorable."

"In view of corporate and consumer cash on hand, we should take every appropriate step to make certain that recovery is

Achieve Goal

Then a judgment can be made on how heavily to load the booster to strengthen and prolong the recovery — and, if possible — to achieve the Kennedy goal of reasonably full employment by mid-1963.

Top-to-bottom rate reduction in individual income and corporation taxes was part of the original Kennedy blueprint to "get the country moving forward"—a program which had been roughly sketched out within weeks after he took office.

But that was to have been a tax-reform program, not a tax reduction plan. The rate reductions were to be offset completely by loophole-closing and the trimming of deductions, exemptions and preferences now enjoyed by many groups.

That's no longer the case. The idea of a net tax cut for all began shaping up after the business recovery hesitated in January and February. There was a strong spring pickup, but not the kind of full-fledged boom that would reduce joblessness to 4 per cent by mid-1963, or keep Kennedy's budget in balance.

The stock market's convulsions

Over-Reaction

Many businessmen felt he over-reacted. The charge that Kennedy is "anti-business" has gained wider acceptance; it apparently worsened the spectacular stock market break of 10 days ago and has contributed to the uncertainty evident in the market since then.

The second approach is faring better. The Treasury shortly will issue liberalized tax allowances for depreciation on machinery and equipment, and Congress seems likely to enact most of Kennedy's first-phase tax revision program, built around a tax credit for big and little companies which invest in new plant equipment.

The administration is confident these measures will remove many of the financial obstacles to the cutting of costs and the improvement of efficiency. If so, they may incidentally make business less anti-Kennedy.

There is no way to be sure, however, that the tax savings actually will be plowed back into the industrial economy. For any manufacturer, the best incentive to spend money is the promise of strongly rising demand. Such assurance is not evident in the moderately paced upturn now in progress.

Obvious Answer

Kennedy's advisers believe the obvious answer—and perhaps the only one since Congress would certainly reject massive government spending as a stimulant when the economy was moving up—is tax reduction.

Their hope and expectation is that an initial deficit in the federal budget would be more than offset in succeeding years by the rising tax collections generated by expansion of employment, income and profits.

The accusation that the administration is buying votes with the tax cut certainly will be made in this fall's congressional election campaign.

But on this question, at least, Kennedy is likely to find a majority of businessmen behind him. Last week, the Council of the United States Chamber of Commerce issued a study which said: "Tax reduction and tax reform should take precedence over new spending programs as a means of stimulating the economy."

Two-Sided

The Kennedy strategy is two-sided. It involves:

First, enlisting the cooperation of labor and management in keeping the economy moving.

Bus Law and the Constitution

There is only one other approach to the problem of the exclusion of non-public school children from the benefits of the tax supported school pupil transportation law, under the state supreme court's decision that the statute adopted by the 1961 legislature is invalid under the Wisconsin state constitution.

This issue has erupted in Wisconsin at intervals for many years. While there will be regrets about the state court conclusion, as there will be expressions of gratification, there is this one result, at least, upon which otherwise disputing persons can agree:

The air has been cleared. It is now certain that these propositions that have caused such fiery struggles in the state legislature over the years need not be offered there again. The only recourse now available to those who believe that the school transportation service should be universal in coverage is to work for the amendment of the state constitution.

The pedantic may and no doubt will say that the question of validity remains in doubt, since two of the best trained lawyers on the court filed dissenting opinions expressing at length their own reservations about the wisdom of the majority, and there are state tribunals in the country that have made contrary decisions.

But these will be meaningless afterthoughts. On the Wisconsin supreme court the majority rules, as elsewhere in our system. Four judges concurred in the Currie view that this statute was in irreconcilable conflict with the constitutional prohibition against the use of public money for religious purposes, and that is now the law of the state.

A word of commendation, aside from the merits of this "difficult and delicate" issue, as Justice Fairchild so aptly described it, is in order for the court. This was a question of profound importance to the budgets and the service arrangements of the schools with the proximity of their new fiscal year. The court agreed to take original jurisdiction in the dispute, thus eliminating the time-consuming and costly trial in the lower courts, and then made up its mind expeditiously.

Project 70 Is Rolling

The enthusiastic reception Appleton merchants gave this week to ideas for modernizing and beautifying downtown stores is additional concrete evidence that Appleton is ahead of neighboring competitive cities in steps to preserve the core area of the city.

This was a practical presentation. Architect Robert Sauter showed drawings of three blocks of College Avenue, utilizing existing structures, but modified to present a uniformly attractive appearance to the shopper. Sauter worked with merchants and landowners for several months to develop the drawings.

Another panelist told the merchants how the improvements could be financed while an accountant demonstrated how tenants and landlords can benefit taxwise by making such improvements.

The modernization of private structures in the retail area by necessity accompanies or follows solution of traffic and parking problems to make it easy for shoppers to come downtown. And Appleton is well on the way toward accomplishing the latter with the projected erection of two parking ramps, the one-way street pattern which is now firmly established, and plans for resurfacing of College Avenue in 1963 or 1964. One speaker suggested the period when the street will be torn up would be a good target date for modernizing College Avenue stores.

In startling contrast to the vigor and enthusiasm of the downtown movement in Appleton is the situation at Green Bay where a 1970 plan has been in the talking stage for years and up to now has amounted to just that — talk.

Many downtown Green Bay merchants are very uneasy about their future. There is already extensive development of retail shopping areas on the outskirts of the city and more are in the works. One of the largest general merchandise operations downtown is about set to move outside.

This week Green Bay police started to crack down on enforcement of the city's new jaywalking ordinance and handed out 44 tickets in one day. Many involved were out-of-town shoppers. Some merchants there are talking about Green Bay becoming a "police state" which is driving shoppers away.

Let there be no doubt that Appleton and Green Bay are locked in a real battle over which city will become the prime retail shopping area for this whole part of the state. And let this conviction spur this community to step up even more its progress toward Appleton 1970. Because 1970 may even be too late.

The Menominee Situation

Mr. Randolph Runden exhibited concern about the future economic welfare of Menominee County when he presented a report on the experience of our neighbors to the north since the termination of federal government wardship and tribal status.

Mr. Runden is a competent witness in the field of local government and community affairs. He was retained by the state as a kind of advisor when the new town and county of Menominee were established. His report to the Legislative Council was generous in its description of the zeal of the new local officials and the management of the biggest and only important economic enterprise within the county, the lumber mill owned and operated by Menominee Enterprises, Inc. But he seemed to be saying quite plainly that he has some doubts about ultimate success of the decision to require the Menominees to stand on their own feet economically as well as politically.

The tax load of the Menominee Enterprises is a heavy one, including for all practical purposes the total of the liability for the support of all local government and its share of state government costs. Recent federal appropriations have provided some relief, but these "phase out" funds will be temporary, by design. Within a very few years the lumber mill and the standing timber will be liable for most of the county and town and state taxes, and Mr. Runden candidly said he doesn't believe the mill can stand the load and return a sufficient profit to meet its bond obligations also.

What the county needs is industrial and business diversification. An obvious avenue is for the development of a tourist industry, which would be comparatively easy if the corporation is willing to permit some outside use of the magnificent woods, waters and general scenic riches of the former reservation.

We are aware there are critics of such proposals, among the Indians, and among outsiders who shudder at the idea of "exploitation." Yet it is a condition and not a theory that faces this community, and it must probably be prepared to use such assets as it has to establish the real independence and reasonable prosperity for more than 3,000 persons that was the stated objective of the termination act.

There is here a challenging opportunity for the state department of resource development, which has seemed anxious enough to devise so many scores of other activities and studies and surveys and planning projects for other and less pressing regional problem situations. There is here what is practically a model opportunity to test the validity of resource development through good planning and management.

Fenelon Leaving Wisconsin

The recent announcement that Dr. William J. Fenelon has accepted a position as dean of the newly formed school of education at DePaul University in Chicago brings mixed emotions to many of his supporters.

Dr. Fenelon lost to Angus Rothwell in the race for state superintendent of public instruction in April, 1961. However, he made a strong bid in the Fox Valley.

Many of his supporters had hoped to see Dr. Fenelon make another bid for the state's top educational post. While wishing him well in his new position, they also realize he no longer will be available as a candidate.

The state of Wisconsin is losing an outstanding educator. Dr. Fenelon has risen from a humble background in the classic American tradition.

After graduating from Brandon High School in Fond du Lac County, he began his education at Green Lake County Normal. He started teaching in a one-room rural school.

From there he returned to his home town as a seventh and eighth grade teacher. During this time he continued his work toward a degree at night sessions and in summer school.

He left Brandon in 1950 to earn his bachelor degree at Oshkosh State. He later earned his master and doctor degrees at Northwestern University.

He served as teacher and principal at Port Washington. He taught at the University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee, before accepting a position as director of instruction at Whitfish Bay.

In addition, he taught part-time and summer sessions at Oshkosh State, Marquette University and UWM.

Wisconsin's loss has become DePaul's gain.

Writer Saw Censored TV Show; Suggests Others Should See It

Editor, Post-Crescent:

Your Sunday edition of June 3rd carried an article concerning Kimberly-Clark's involvement with "The Benefactor", a story of The Defenders series, concerning abortion.

Let me first say that, in my opinion, Kimberly-Clark is sponsoring a fine series as was recently proved by the number of awards received by The Defenders. However, while it may have been prudent business to withdraw sponsorship from this one story of the series, I was amazed to learn that the vast majority of mail received by K.C. from this viewing area heartily endorsed K.C.'s action, and approved the local censorship of the program.

I believe this entire affair is more serious than it might at first appear. I should like to express what might possibly be an unpopular opinion.

It was my good fortune, I believe, to be absent from this censored viewing area at the time. Thus, I was able to see, and did see, this controversial teleplay "The Benefactor". May I say to everyone in this area whose censors decided he would not be allowed to see it, that he was denied the right of free choice to see a very thought-provoking and serious program that was presented with exceedingly good taste.

If the local censors had allowed it to be seen, I believe most viewers would agree "The Benefactor" did not condone abortion, but rather presented the seriousness of a current social problem. It was a program, in my opinion, that every parent and especially young daughters should have seen, and would have benefitted from seeing.

Today we are confronted with many grave social problems such as crime, immoderate use of alcohol, dope addiction, divorce and others as well as pregnancy outside of wedlock and the abortions that all too often follow. All of these problems, I believe, have one thing in common. They are all on the increase in spite of all the commendable efforts being made by churches, schools, civic organizations, parents, and others. Surely, these problems are not going to be minimized or overcome by playing ostrich.

While pregnancy outside wedlock should not be minimized, it is at least physically natural. But abortion is not. It is legally, morally, and physically wrong except in special cases. It is my belief that "The Benefactor" pointed this out very clearly. I believe young girls should have seen it to help impress with crystal clarity the terrible aspects of the act and its consequences. Parents too, could have profited from seeing this story, for I believe it would have helped them to better understand and to cope more log-

Rebels Retreat Through Woods

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for June 14, 1862.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 7 — The attack upon the enemy's rear yesterday precipitated his retreat. Their loss and wounded was very severe.

Their retreat was through an almost impassable road, along which many wagons were left in the woods and wagon loads of blankets, clothing and other equipment are piled up in all directions.

During the evening, many of the rebels were killed by shells from a battery of Gen. Staples' brigade.

Gen. Ashby, who covered his retreat with his whole cavalry and two regiments of infantry, who also displayed admirable skill and bravery, was among the killed.

Gen. Milroy made a reconnaissance today, about seven miles on the Port Republic Road and found part of the enemy's forces encamped in the timber. — J. C. Fremont.

State Democratic Tax Policy Reactionary

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — The proposed Democratic party platform plank which would get rid of the selective sales tax and install in its stead the most burdensome rate of income taxation any state in the country has seriously considered is a direct repudiation of the Democratic state administration now in office.

Not only does it compromise the only Democratic state regime that has been elected on its own merits in this century, but it envisions a state fiscal policy that virtually every accredited student of state affairs knows is impractical and will so testify.

This bland clinging to the traditional method of taxation, deriving from simpler times and smaller governmental operations, strongly suggests that these authors are unfamiliar with the facts of life in Wisconsin lately, and totally unfamiliar with such documents as the report of the so-called "blue ribbon" commission of a year and a half ago.

PRELIMINARY?

This is merely the proposal of a small handful of Democratic party politicians, of course. It need not be ratified by the party convention later this month. Yet the significant fact is that it is very likely to be ratified, and thus become party gospel in a year when the Democrats will find their prospects somewhat less promising than in the last couple of rounds with the Republican adversary.

One is inclined to guess that these men have analyzed their prospects gloomily, and have concluded that it is better to be beaten standing on the old ically with the problem should it arise — and it does arise in the most unsuspected places.

I shall pray that some day the censors of this community will reconsider and reverse their stand, and will allow this viewing area to see a re-run of "The Benefactor". Believe me, it is a sobering story and is well worth seeing.

Joseph G. Cannon

ground and on the old beliefs, than to make the uncomfortable adjustment to changing circumstances and requirements and then be beaten anyway.

One of the ironies of the Democratic party position in Wisconsin is that it consistently takes an advanced stand on the expenditure issues of politics, while it insists upon retaining what is a reactionary position on revenue collection — in the sense that it wants to retain the revenue methods of earlier decades which no other states of the country have been able to rely upon in these days of expanding governmental operations and benefits.

Perhaps more significantly, the stand-pat Democratic liberal has no real confidence in popular backing for his taxation position — if the taxes are levied directly and painfully with full and direct responsibility upon the individual.

The Democrats in the state administration and the legislature a year ago were able to stand boldly for higher personal income tax rates because they accompanied their proposal with the plan for withholding from wage and salary checks. Today they are reasonably sure that if they win the election they can put over even higher rates — that would be the highest in the country without any doubt — because the withholding machinery exists to deaden the effect and frequently blot out altogether the individual's awareness of his tax load.

THE MEANING

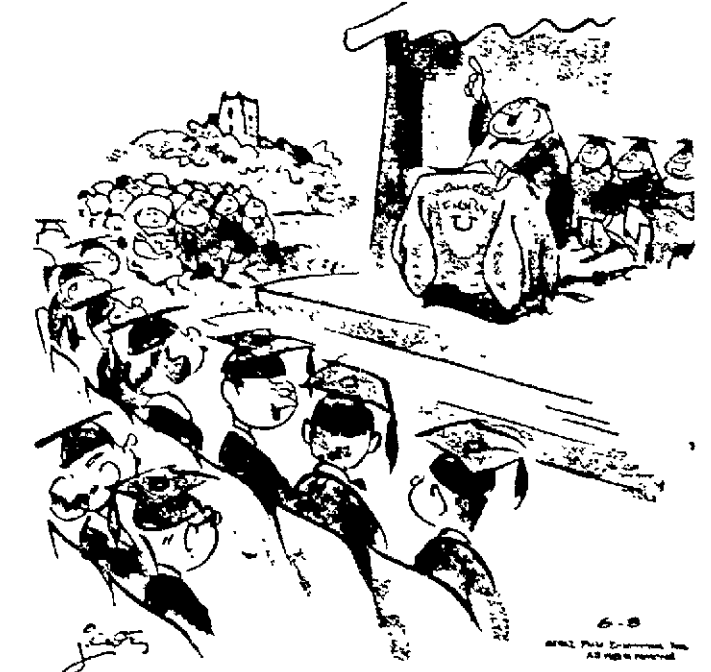

Yet there will be those few tentative persons, it may be assumed, who will trouble to examine their pay check deductions if this curious party position ever is translated into law.

The discovery will be startling. For what this suggested Democratic platform is saying is that income taxes will be raised by $50,000,000 a year to replace the present excise tax program, another $50,000,000 a year to take into account the normal growth of state budget costs, and yet additional millions — at least another $50,000,000 — to pay for the Democratic programs of more liberal expenditures that will also figure in the campaign themes.

That will mean an approximate doubling of the present rates of personal income taxation, and may persuade some citizens to recall the warning of the "blue ribbon" commission that Wisconsin cannot tax in a vacuum, that there are no walls around the state, that its economic functions in a competitive national society, and that local taxes relate to the strength of the state's competitive position.

Tariff Strife Begins With Inner Six

Commonwealth Nations Afraid of Britain's Joining

BY SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The Common Market's impact on the rest of the world is suddenly mushrooming all over the front pages. A small trade war is threatened between the trading bloc and the United States over carpet and glass tariffs on our part and certain chemicals, paints and textiles on the part of the six European nations.

Australia, New Zealand, Canada, India, Pakistan—all are protesting the possible loss to them if Britain joins the Common Market at the expense of abandoning preferential treatment for nations of the British Commonwealth.

Crippling Trade

Even the Communist countries are denating in Moscow today how to counteract the growing power of the Common Market in Western Europe that is crippling their trade.

The impact is felt on political as well as trade policies, on domestic as well as foreign programs.

The U.S. Congress is deep in a tariff debate. The central question: how best the United States can deal with the Common Market threat or take advantage of its promise of expanded trade if we cooperate.

The British government may face a political crisis as opposing parties take sides, even split amongst themselves, on the commonwealth problem.

Soviet Policies

Soviet policies may well be affected. Many of the Common Market inroads involve trade with the satellites rather than with Russia itself. The Soviet Union has been selling crude oil and certain types of steel to Western Europe at prices well below what its satellites must pay.

In all parts of the world, including the Common Market itself, the current problems are fluid. It is this uncertainty as to the final direction that upsets business and politicians most.

For the Common Market isn't a complete thing yet by any means. Quarrels over treatment of agricultural products still divide the six members—France, Italy, West Germany, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

And still very much in doubt is what progress they may make towards some form of political as well as trade unity. Age-old national and racial differences are proving hard to surmount.

But for all its unsolved problems and the uncertainties about its final form, the Common Market is a very solid fact today.

The current danger is that failure to come to terms with it on tariffs, import quotas and currency or other trade barriers could divide the Western world into warring trade blocs.

It's this danger that spices the political debates on both sides of the Atlantic, both sides of the Pacific, and perhaps within the walls of the Kremlin.

YOUR CARRIER

If the tenacity with which so many families hold to and pass on Post-Crescent news carrier routes is a measure of success, then very successful they must be. Post-Crescent news carrier, Dennis Everson, 825 E. John St., is yet another young business man in a line who inherited his route from a brother and yet another brother before him. As a matter of fact, Post-Crescent delivery service has been a part of the Everson family for over five years.

The now ancient route covers an area including the 700 to 800 blocks on E. John Street, 200 to 300 blocks on Meade Street, the 200 block on Drew street, South Court and Brokaw Place.

Dennis enjoys racing — as a sport — likes to swim, play basketball and baseball, is keen on fishing and has a coin collection. His route earnings are applied to supporting these activities, for the purchase of clothes and to assist with family bills.

Combined Locks Approves Buchanan Water Extension

COMBINED LOCKS — The village board has granted permission earlier to the Van Daalwyk Land Company to extend sewer and water lines from the village to be annexed. Daniel Williams, Combined Locks president, indicated the matter would be resolved before service was extended.

Under the agreement, Combined Locks cannot extend water service beyond the corporate limits of the village. Sewage service to Combined Locks is handled by Kaukauna and the contract specifies handling sewage from that community, but says nothing about extension of service outside corporate limits.

The village clerk was authorized to advertise for bids on an undetermined amount of 4-inch sidewalk to be installed in various parts of the village this summer under the supervision of village officials.

Rapid growth of the community and the increased number of streets having curb and gutter led to a discussion on the feasibility of purchasing a street sweeper, but no action was taken.

Combined Locks Swimming Plan Again Adopted

COMBINED LOCKS — Through efforts of the village board, children will again be permitted to swim at the Kaukauna pool twice a week during the summer starting Tuesday.

The board has arranged for bus transportation to and from the pool, but children will be required to pay a small pool admission fee. The bus will leave from the West Side Park at 2:40 p.m. and the Pavilion Park at 2:45 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Swimming hours will be from 3 to 5 p.m.

Other recreation programs are being organized through the Kimbly recreation department. The department is under jurisdiction of the school board and by July transportation to and from the 1 Combined Locks will be a member of the school district.

Mrs. Tillman was among 47 heirs and institutions receiving a share of Mrs. Morneau's $102,932 estate after final action Wednesday in Outagamie County Court, Branch 3.

Appleton Xavier High School received $2,500; St. Mary Church $1,000 and the St. Joseph Orphanage $2,000. Mrs. Morneau's husband, DeWayne, Minneapolis, received $10,000. Other heirs, mostly relatives and friends, received $500 and $1,000 shares.

Appleton Man Pays For Hit and Run Accident in Village

LITTLE CHUTE — Robert J. Tierney, 22, 616 N. State St., Appleton, pleaded guilty of hit and run driving when arraigned before Anton Jansen, municipal justice of the peace, and was fined $50.

Tierney hit a parked car on E. Main Street May 19 and from evidence at the scene and through cooperation of the Appleton police department, Tierney was arrested and brought to court. He will have six points charged against his driving record.

Kaukauna Appoints Neenah Woman Head Librarian

KAUKAUNA — Mrs. Lloyd DuChaine, Neenah, has been appointed head librarian by the board of trustees of the public library.

She will assume duties June 11. The post has been vacant since the resignation of Roderick MacDonald on Sept. 1, 1961. During the interim, Miss Mary Toman, assistant librarian, was serving in the capacity of head librarian.

Mrs. DuChaine received her master's degree in library science from the University of Wisconsin this year. She earned her bachelor's degree from the University in 1961. She is a graduate of Ladysmith High School and Rusk County Normal School.

Previously Mrs. DuChaine served as librarian at Ladysmith and the Rusk County public library as well as being both a full and part-time employee of libraries in Neenah and Menasha.

Mr. DuChaine is employed by Kimberly-Clark Corp., Neenah, and the couple, with their one daughter, reside in rural Neenah. They plan to move to Kaukauna in the near future.

At Kaukauna, Mrs. DuChaine will be responsible for a library which circulated 113,160 books and periodicals to 5,211 borrowers last year. She will head a staff of eight employees.

Glamorous Hobo Life 'Railroads' Guests To Successful Party at Butte des Morts

Hostesses and Guests Put Their imaginations to the test Tuesday when Mrs. Eric Lindberg and Mrs. William Pifer, Appleton; Mrs. Richard Lutz, Oshkosh, and Mrs. Kenneth Loehning and Mrs. B. W. Keese, Neenah, held a Hobo Party at Butte des Morts Golf Club. Beards suddenly flourished on the faces of attractive women, and front teeth succumbed to blackening tricks. Noses became ruddy from years of traveling the hobo trail and feminine figures were disguised by an assortment of costumes in keeping with the tramp-like practice of wearing tenth-hand clothes.

Mrs. Kenneth Loehning and Mrs. B. W. Keese, Neenah, co-hostesses at the Hobo Party Tuesday at Butte des Morts Golf Club admired the burlap gown of their very chic guest, Mrs. Richard Kewley, Appleton.

Mrs. Richard Lutz, Oshkosh, above left, a party co-hostess, had a stroke of good fortune in her acquisition of the stunning costume worn Tuesday at Butte des Morts Golf club. Mrs. Robert Spooner, in the pink of fashion herself, listens to her friend's story of success. At right, Mrs. John Ayers and Mrs. H. E. Jenkins, Appleton, partake of refreshments offered in the grand manner.

Songs Were Raised to the Confederacy by Mrs. A. W. August, Green Bay, and Mrs. Arthur Trettin, Appleton, who appeared in a uniform recalling Civil War Days.

Some of the Appurtenances of 'jungle' life are shown above. The comforts of a hobo's home include travel posters, cooking utensils, spare tires and a neat white picket fence. 'At home' in the glamorous setting are Mrs. L. O. Cooke, Neenah, and Mrs. William Pifer, Appleton, a co-hostess. Below, enjoying the good fellowship aspects of life in suburbia are Mrs. Eric Lindberg, Appleton, a co-hostess; Mrs. John W. Lally, Appleton; Mrs. Fred Kampo, Neenah, and Mrs. Marvin Etten, Neenah, serving refreshments.

113-Year-Old Man Won't Sit on Jury

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Levi Groty was excused from jury duty in Sedgwick County District Court Thursday after he told Judge Thomas C. Raum: "I couldn't sit still eight hours." "You see, judge, I am 113 years old and can work hard all day, but I just can't sit still anymore."

This is an ad
for people who have never owned a convertible.

"They're not very watertight."
"They're cold in the winter."
"You have all those ugly-looking struts and crossbars inside."

"The back window always looks a mess."

As a Volkswagen dealer, we hear these and other comments about convertibles over and over again. And while we know that some of them aren't true for some convertibles, and some are true for others, we also know this: not one of the above comments makes sense when you talk about our Volkswagen Convertible.

Here's why:

For one thing, the top of the VW Convertible overlaps the windshield frame. (Unlike conventional convertible tops that just meet the windshield.) This means the Volkswagen Convertible stays as watertight and weatherproof as a sedan. Rain and wind and cold stay out.

Then too, the inside of the VW Convertible top is as smooth and good-looking as that of a sedan. Because it's padded and completely lined. You never see struts or crossbars inside the VW Convertible.

And the padding is functional too: serves as a heat and sound insulator. (Most people are amazed to find the VW Convertible as warm—if not warmer—in winter than our sedan. It's all that extra padding they put in that does the trick.)

The top of the VW Convertible is like a sedan in another way.

Like the back window in a sedan, the rear window in the VW Convertible is made of glass. Unlike plastic rear windows in conventional convertibles, it doesn't scratch, discolor or cloud-up.

We almost forgot to mention that the top is made in an old-fashioned custom way. Individually. Meticulously. Thoroughly. By hand. Every top is cut out by hand, padded by hand, stitched by hand, precisely fitted to the car by hand.

This convertible is unconventional in other ways. For example, it's as watertight on the bottom as it is on top.

If you could look underneath the VW Convertible you'd see the body has a flat, smooth bottom. It's actually enclosed with a one-piece steel plate and sealed with rubber. No exposed wires, and cables to trap water.

Your VW Convertible will slash through rain, zip through snow and ice and mud, and all its parts will stay protected.

The VW Convertible costs just $2,105.00 Complete.

(By complete we mean you get a built-in heater and defroster, a windshield washer, electric windshield wipers, padded sun visors, front passenger grab handle, spare tire, lock and tool kit.)

If you've never owned a convertible, don't let this ad convince you.

Take a drive in our open-air VW. It's a converting experience.

Early Slough Relief Report Not Feasible, Sen. Proxmire Writes

Pollution Control Major Problem
At Neenah, Federal Survey Indicates

NEENAH — An early interim Butte des Morts into Neenah report covering the Neenah slough relief situation is not feasible at this time, Sen. William Proxmire wrote. Ald. Wilmot Houtt in relaying information received from the Army Engineer Corps.

Gen. MacDonnell, director of civil work for the Army Engineer Corps, has advised that the Neenah Slough will be included in the survey of the Fox and Wolf Rivers but that the immediate problem is one of pollution control, the senator wrote.

He said he had hoped for an earlier report on the slough than that to be received on the Fox-Wolf River basin study.

Sen. Proxmire wrote that he had received the following information from Gen. MacDonnell:

Water Diversion
"Based on information submitted by officials of Neenah, it appears that the problem of the Neenah Slough is one of pollution control. One of the solutions is to divert water from Little Lake,

The eight-member full committee, named May 24 by Mayor John Klein, will meet again at 7 p.m. June 20.

At Thursday's organizational meeting, Ralph McClone was elected chairman and Thomas Woodrow secretary.

One subcommittee's mission is to study the costs involved in the athletic field development — initial for construction, debt retirement and operation and maintenance. On this group are Douglas Hyde, a Marathon vice president, and Wes Saecker, businessman.

Uses to be Studied

A second subcommittee will study possible uses, benefits and what, if any, facilities should be provided besides the football field and cinder running track. Also to be scrutinized are possible users besides high school athletic teams. Serving on the subcommittee are Ald. Richard Hansen, council finance committee chairman, and McClone.

Administration will be studied by a third subcommittee, composed of the Rev. Donald Stoegbauer, administrator of St. Mary High School, and Woodrow, a member of the board of education. Although the grant from Banta Co. Foundation Inc. provides that the stadium would be administered by the school board, several problems are foreseen in instances where the field is used for non-school purposes. One early suggestion is a separate commission to operate the facility, another to put it under the Park and Recreation Board. None is final.

Publicity and public education in advance of the referendum will be handled by the fourth subcommittee, composed of Supt. of Schools J. G. Gegan and John Pinkerton, a member of the now-dissolved Menasha Park Board. Press contact and a speakers' bureau are among its duties.

A Series of Electric Eyes Watch to see that colors are printed in correct alignment. They are housed in the four black boxes running across the width of the press just above the head of pressman Robert Wulterkens. The photo-electric scanning system was installed by the Post-Crescent to get the best possible color picture reproduction.

New Electric Eye Scanner Improves P-C Color Photos

Model First of Kind Anywhere; Installation Took Week Plus

When subscribers to the Post-Crescent see color pictures in the paper in the future, they'll find the quality of reproduction better than ever before.

The Post-Crescent has installed a new photo-electric scanning system that will automatically adjust the web of paper through the press so that the colors in the picture will be correctly positioned.

Allowing for the normal amount of variance in mechanical devices the color pictures will be as perfect as man and machine can make them.

The custom built equipment was installed during the past week and a half by a crew of men from the Electric Eye Equipment Division of the Hurlertron Co., Inc., Danville, Ill. Hurlertron's home offices are in Chicago.

First of its Kind

The reason it took so long to install is that the model of equipment used here is the first of its kind anywhere. As in all new mechanical devices, there were a number of bugs that had to be evicted. Some more may try to creep in, but Hurlertron's experts will try to shoo them out quickly.

Here's what makes the Post-Crescent equipment different from previous models. The photo-electric scanning system has supplanted a photo-magnetic system. An electric motor will make roller adjustments for the web of paper, instead of hydraulic equipment.

The new device, which operates essentially as an electric eye system, gives this newspaper what is technically called a "web compensated press with a circumferential register control."

Basically here is how it operates. As the web of paper travels through the press, pre-determined register marks are printed on the paper between pages.

Those marks pass in front of the series of electric eyes across the width of the press. Impulses are sent to a console of electronic equipment which determines if the colors are being printed in the proper position.

Activate Motor

If the colors are not positioned correctly, the console will activate the electric motor on the side of the press. The motor will move the web rollers to either stretch the paper or allow it to contract.

The advantage of the photo-electric scanning system is that it can make the adjustments hundreds of times faster than a man can do it.

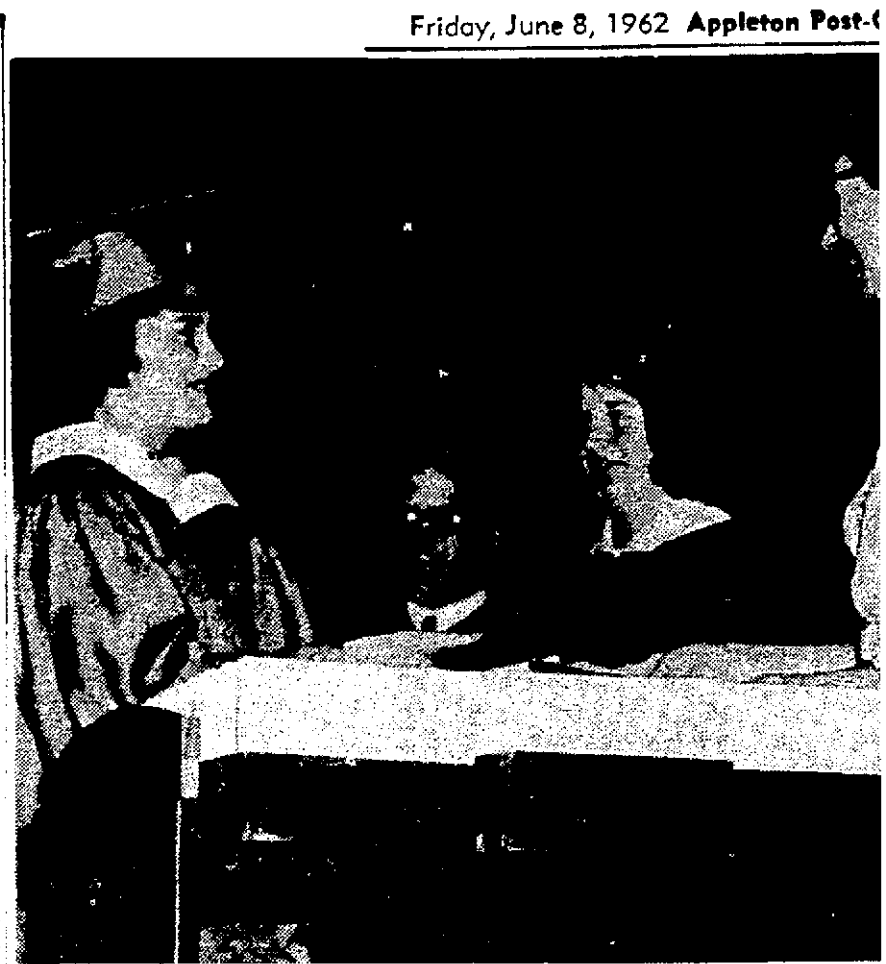

Formerly, when colors were not in position a pressman had to manually adjust the press. By the time he could do it some 50 papers probably had been run off. Then the pressman had to hope he made enough adjustment. If he didn't, he had to make another.

Adjust Immediately

The photo-electric system will make the adjustment in just a few seconds, so that probably no more than three or four papers will appear with the colors out of position. The amount they are out of position will be less, and the adjustment will be accurate.

The electric eyes are in operation only when the color pictures are passing in front of them. A third pre-determined mark, called a gate mark, is printed on the web of paper and turns the eyes on and off.

When the press is started, the first few papers will not have perfect color alignment. The photo-electric system does not start to operate until the press has reached a certain speed. Even with the electronic equipment it is not possible to adjust the web rollers at slow speeds.

that we are in the midst of an age which encourages superficiality when we need depth."

Unlike earlier ages, we have the time to develop ourselves, the leisure that was formerly reserved to the aristocrats, he said, and there are unprecedented opportunities for solving the problems of the individual.

The program included a violin solo, "Concertino" by O. Rieding, by Kenneth Gibson, who was accompanied by Mrs. William H. Gibson, and a clarinet solo, "Solo de Concors" by A. Messenger, by Jean Grutzmacher, accompanied by Phoebe Sager.

Adela Klumb Honored

A high point of the program was the presentation of 42 American Beauty roses to Miss Adela Klumb, retiring this year after 42 years of teaching high school English in Appleton. The graduates and audience rose to applaud her as she accepted the roses from Appleton High School principal Herbert H. Helble.

While presenting the class of 1962 to Superintendent of Schools

Royce E. Kurtz. Helble noted that it was the smallest graduating class in the last five years, some 200 less than last year. The number would be up 200 again next year, he said, and may reach 300 before a second high school is in operation.

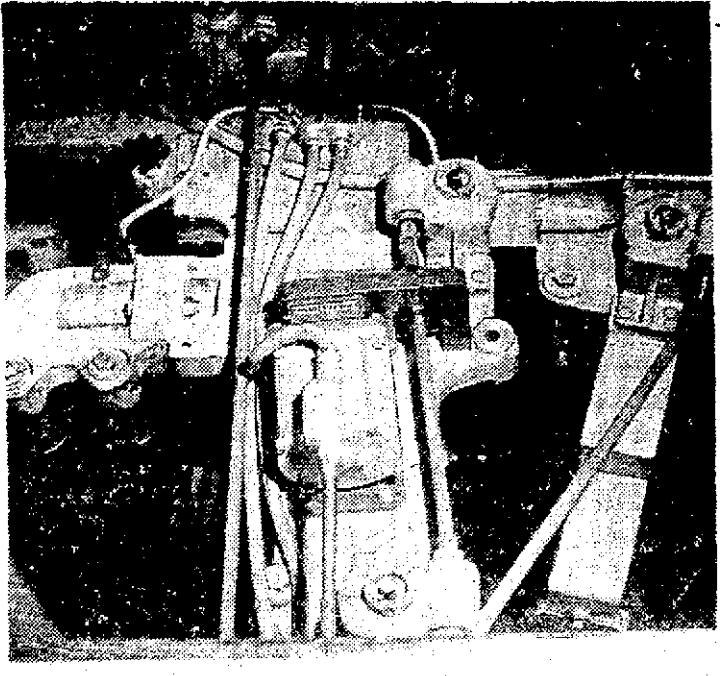

Mrs. Myrl N. Davis, president of the board of Education, presented diplomas to the seniors. The Rev. Leonard Ziemer, pastor of First English Lutheran Church, gave the invocation and benediction.

New B State D Name

KAUKAUNA, Wis., (AP)—The state board of education today selected to be one of the new names for the state's public schools. The board selected the name "Kaukauna" for the new school district. The board also selected the name "Kaukauna" for the new school district. The board also selected the name "Kaukauna" for the new school district.

Meters and Flashing Lights in the box on the wall tell Appleton Post-Crescent pressmen if the electric eye color control system is functioning properly. Eugene Mueller, pressroom foreman, and Carl Deeken look over a copy of the paper after the new equipment was installed. Deeken is a mechanical design engineer for the Electric Eye Equipment Division of the Hurlertron Co., Inc., which manufactured the custom built unit.

The Small White Housing in the middle of this picture contains the electric motor that moves the web rollers on the press so that all colors will be correctly positioned. This is the first time an electric motor has been used for that part of the work done by the photo-electric scanning system. Previously, hydraulic equipment was used.

Appleton Gets $502,786 From State Income Tax

Appleton has received $502,786 from the state department of taxation as its first 1961 allotment of state income tax shares.

The city budget anticipates receiving a total of $1,340,000.

In the past, income tax shares came in two installments. Because of the state tax revision this year, future payments will be made in three installments—May, August and December.

The first installment this year came in June because the state office was behind schedule in figuring the amounts due to communities and mailing out the checks.

This year's first payment compares with $695,422 for the same city will get from the new selection a year ago. The amounts five sales tax, which is to be used for comparable periods vary be-

Farmer Should Treat His Hay 'Carefully'

Leaves of Crop Most Valuable, But Easily Lost

A University of Wisconsin agronomist today advised farmers to "handle your hay crop as carefully as you would a basket of eggs."

About 70 per cent of the protein and energy of alfalfa is in the leaves, F. V. Burcalow said. These leaves are easily lost through aging, drying, weathering, handling, or disease and insect damage.

Burcalow continued, the biggest losses occur with field curing of hay. If our four million acres of tame hay were entirely field cured, it would cost Wisconsin farmers nearly one hundred million dollars for enough protein concentrate to make up for what's lost in the leaves.

It usually requires two or three days of ideal drying weather to field-cure a hay crop. But there is only one chance in three of getting three days in a row without rain. He advised farmers that to field-cure their crop, to rake the hay into windrows before the leaves become dry enough to shatter. He said let the hay cure more in the windrow than in the swath. Then handle the crop very little, and gently.

Food Donations From U. S. Total 1.5 Billion Pounds

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department says its food donations in this country totaled more than 1.5 billion pounds for the nine months ending March 31. This is an increase of 87 per cent over the 835 million pounds the department distributed in the nine-month period which ended March 31, 1961.

This increase, the department said, is a result of its efforts to use more of the nation's farm abundance to improve the diets of school children and needy persons.

There were 7.4 million needy persons receiving donated foods in March 1962 compared with 5.6 million in March 1961 when effects of the increase in the family donation program called for by President Kennedy were realized, the department said.

There was also an increase in foreign distribution to give a total for food donations at home and abroad of 3.6 billion pounds. This ing are two means of reducing leaf loss. Crushing reduces loss by equalizing the drying rate between stems and leaves. Crushed stems dry almost as fast as leaves.

By mow drying a farmer can put the hay in storage at 35 to 45 per cent moisture. Very few leaves are lost. Most farmers who've tried it haven't bought any protein concentrates since they started mow drying. And in most cases their milk production has gone up.

is more than 42 per cent more than the 2.5 billion pounds distributed in the same period a year earlier.

The cost of the donated commodities to all outlets for nine months ending March 31 1962 totaled $461.9 million, about a 56 per cent increase over the same months last year.

Marx will be the state junior leader council delegate.

Fox Cities Area Ranks as One of Top U. S. Dairy Spots

State, Nation Pays Tribute to The Cow During June Promotions

BY HARRY KURTZ
Post-Crescent Farm Editor

It's impossible to think of Wisconsin and not think of the dairy industry. No matter how hard you try, the two just go together.

There's good reason for it. Wisconsin has become synonymous with the world's finest dairy products — milk, cheese, butter, ice cream, dried milk, cream and dozens of other products.

The dairy industry is important in all seasons, but during June the dairy industry gets special attention.

There are few spots in Wisconsin — or the world for that matter — which can compare with the Fox Cities area in quality and quantity of dairy goods, Calumet, Outagamie, Shawano, Waupaca and Winnebago are outstanding dairy spots.

Freeman Seeking to Find Ways of Keeping Family Farm Intact

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Public Advisory Committee has asked Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman to establish an annual review of ways to preserve and improve the family farm pattern.

The advisory committee said Friday the annual review of farm policies and programs would help assure that the family farm continues to be an important part of American agriculture.

Freeman told the group at one of its sessions that the family farm is a cornerstone in rural areas development.

"We must constantly be aware that the efficiency and effectiveness of family farms are vital to the economy of the whole country," he said.

In the five-county area there are more than 208,000 milk cows. That's about two cows for every three people.

Want some more information about dairying in the area?

These 208,000 cows produced 1,800,000,000 pounds of milk. That's enough milk to provide every person in the world with a glass of milk.

Among other things, that milk went into the making of 89.8 million pounds of cheese. That'd be enough to make two king-sized cheese sandwiches for every man, woman and child in the entire United States.

However, the Fox Cities area would have to turn to the rest of the state for help in buttering these sandwiches. Total butter production amounted to about 350,000 pounds with 329,000 pounds of this being made in Calumet County.

For dessert, the Fox Cities produced more than 850,000 gallons of ice cream and ice milk. That's enough for four servings for every person in Wisconsin.

Gets Real Buy
It's interesting to note that the American consumer gets a real buy when he purchases dairy products. Out of all the food he eats, he gets 28 per cent of his total nutrition from dairy products.

Yet he's spending only 19 cents of his food dollar for these dairy products.

Wisconsin is world-famous as a dairyland. And the five counties in the Fox Cities area have certainly done more than their share to build and maintain this reputation.

'Out for Fast Buck'

Billie Sol Estes Had Plenty of Help in Chattel Mortgage Scheme

Chicago Daily News Service

AUSTIN, Texas — Many farmer suckers in Billie Sol Estes chattel mortgage kiting scheme were acting like hogs. They weren't reaching for a fast buck — they were grabbing for a bundle.

West Texas ranchers signed their names for paper that committed them to pay sums up to $950,000.

The bait was that they would get a 10 per cent cut just for signing the papers. Billie Sol Estes and his aids would take care of everything, filling out the papers, credit references, the payments and even the checkers from the finance company.

Now that the roof has fallen in on Estes, the Pecos cotton king, cut-rate fertilizer distributor, and grain storer, many of the farmers will go broke trying to meet the installments on anhydrous ammonia tanks and other fertilizer equipment that does not even exist.

There were some small farmers caught, who had signed on as little as $3,000 worth of paper. But West Texas ranchers have gotten in the habit of doing things big. By signing up on an extra $50,000 of paper the rancher would automatically pocket about $4,000 of profit.

Estes' sales pitch on borrowing ranchers' credit came at an opportune time. Most of them had had a couple bad years and wanted, or needed, to make some money.

Wanted Aid

One of them went to Estes seeking some aid in borrowing money for himself. But Billie Sol was a super salesman. The farmer came out of the room without having gotten aid on his loan but having endorsed paper so that Billie Sol could borrow more.

Biggest of the note signers was W. J. (Coot) Worsham, who signed up on $849,300 of installment paper that was sold to 11 finance companies, according to testimony obtained by Texas Atty. General Will Wilson.

L. G. (Bo) Worsham, his brother, testified that he had probably signed up on about $500,000 worth of paper. He also will go broke if he has to make good on the payments.

A third Worsham, Fred, didn't have much sympathy for the signers.

"There is no doubt in my mind that most of them knew that these tanks didn't exist," he said in a sworn statement. "The farmers knew that. They wouldn't have to be very smart to know that because several of them have bought more than the whole state of Texas needs."

Billie Sol Estes had a pattern for getting signers on his spurious paper.

He would send out word that he wanted to see a wealthy farmer. When the man came in, Estes would explain that he had expanded so fast that he was running out of credit and suggested that he would like to borrow the farmer's credit.

Few Refused

The record down here indicates that few, if any, of the farmers turned him down. Many felt indebted to him for past favors.

Estes would shove a handful of papers at the farmer to sign, some of them in blank, and say that he would need other signatures later but that would be after his office had finished preparing the papers.

The deal was that Estes, or one of his companies, would buy some anhydrous ammonia tanks, or some fertilizer application apparatus, and make the 20 per cent down payment. Then he, or his company, would lease the equipment from the farmer. Estes would agree to supply the farmer checks to make the monthly payments to the finance company. One farmer received a stack of pre-dated checks running for several years ahead.

If the farmer balked at the credit risk involved, Estes would agree to supply a "hold harmless" agreement from his tank supplier. This said that if the farmer could not meet the payments the supplier would take the tanks back and not hold the farmer liable for any payments.

Supply References

Estes would also supply the credit references. He had a reception with five sets of stationary for five of his companies and five separate typewriters. She would write out the necessary credit references and send them out to officials of these companies for signatures. The letters would say that farmer so-and-so had done so much business with them, had a credit limit of so much and was prompt pay.

In actual practice, Superior Manufacturing Co. would take the signed notes and discount them with, or sell them to, a finance company. From the proceeds it would deduct an amount equal to the profit it would make on the tanks, if they had been manufactured, and pay the remainder into a dummy bank account at the First National Bank of Pecos held under the name of Texas Steel Co. This dummy Texas Steel Co. account would then transfer the funds to Billie Sol Estes.

A similar deal was also worked by Estes and his buddies through the Lubbock Machine and Supply Co., also a tank maker. The farmer would receive his "lease bonus" of 10 per cent of the amount of the indebtedness created, often in the form of a credit to buy anhydrous ammonia from Estes' companies.

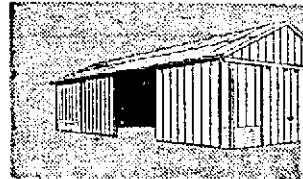

Close to 50 farmers or ranchers participated in these Estes' lending deals. They financed purchase of 30,000 tanks.

Great Changes Seen for State Vegetable Growing Industries

MADISON — The vegetable growing industry in this country is undergoing some drastic changes in production and marketing, according to a University of Wisconsin horticulturist. And this pattern of change is going to pick up, says John A. Schoenemann.

Schoenemann compares modern vegetable growing to manufacturing of industrial products. The modern vegetable farm uses land, labor, capital, and machines together with inputs such as air, sunlight, water, fertilizer, seed, to turn out a finished product such as potatoes. Good efficient management is an important ingredient. Modern vegetable growing is also becoming a truly "controlled manufacturing process." Even weather has become "controllable" to a measurable extent through irrigation and frost protection methods.

Schoenemann adds that vegetable growing is becoming more specialized. Yesterday's market gardeners often grew ten or more different kinds of crops. The trend today is toward specializing on fewer crops and often on a single crop.

Larger Farms
Farms are becoming larger and require more capital. Twenty years ago a vegetable growing business could be started with a few thousand dollars and ten acres of land. In Wisconsin a recent survey showed that the average investment each member of the Board of Directors of the Wisconsin Potato Growers' Association had in his business was over $250,000. The average annual acreage of potatoes and other vegetables produced by each director was 485 acres. The range in farm size represented was from 100 to 1,000 acres of potatoes and other vegetables produced each year.

Vegetable growing is shifting away from areas near towns and cities and into more "outlying" areas. Transportation distance is less of a factor. Schoenemann says the modern vegetable grower cannot afford to ride a tractor working in his fields. He is hiring more things done for him. This involves such things as accounting services and consulting services and marketing.

There is continuing pressure for more mechanization. Mechanical bean picking, pickle picking, tomato harvesting and precision planting are now a reality or are just around the corner.

The present-day market is made up of fewer buyers wanting a high volume of uniformly graded and packaged produce. Quality control is becoming more essential. If the vegetable grower produces a five-pound head of cabbage most housewives likely will not buy it, they will turn to another kind of vegetable.

Integration in the vegetable growing business is on the increase. Vegetable growers have long been accustomed to contract farming particularly for processing crops. In the future advance contracting of fresh vegetables by large-volume buyers will likely increase.

The small grower will find it increasingly difficult to compete in the vegetable business. Roadside marketing and broadening of his product line to include year-round selling at such establishments are possibilities. Co-ordinated group purchasing and marketing organizations are another way around part of the small growers problems.

Tips Given on How to Make Hay Silage for Your Farm

Low moisture grass silage is in fiber, which does not make certain to replace a lot of the nutritious livestock feed. When you make low moisture hay being made on Wisconsin farms, according to Russell Luckow, Farm and Home Development Agent, Outagamie County, judging by the inquiries the past month or so.

It's not that hay has any less feeding value — some trials indicate that hay will produce more milk per acre. But low moisture silage has a real advantage in the possibility for complete mechanism.

You can make good low moisture grass silage through either of two methods. But whether you make "haylage" under airtight storage, or low moisture silage using conventional storage: the stage at which you cut is important. Cut alfalfa at the one-tenth bloom stage. Once past this stage of growth, alfalfa drops in yield and per cent protein. At the same time alfalfa will increase

Oak Wilt May Hit Your Prize Trees

Ways Given to Help Prevent Spread of Persistent Disease

More proud oaks will wilt and die this summer from a persistent disease called oak wilt.

There are some ways to save the oak trees. Here's a report on research progress from J. E. Kuntz, University of Wisconsin tree disease specialist.

In Wisconsin the oak wilt fungus commonly spreads from an infected oak to adjacent healthy oaks through underground root grafts. The researchers have controlled such tree-to-tree spread of oak wilt by poisoning with sodium arsenite all healthy oaks within 25 to 50 feet of infected trees or by cutting or breaking all roots joining such trees. Various mechanical equipment has been used—root breakers, trenchers, ditch diggers, and sub-soilers.

Used Soil

In recent experiments in the Plainfield sand of central Wisconsin the researchers have used soil injections of methyl bromide and vapam between infected and healthy trees. This soil fumigation plugs the vascular systems of the roots. The oak wilt fungus did not pass through killed roots across fumigation zones. Similar promising results followed fumigation of oak roots in heavier soil types.

The oak wilt fungus can be carried by insects over longer distances. The insects are attracted to the fungus mats of infected trees. They then carry the disease to wounds of nearby healthy trees. In Wisconsin this wound infection is especially critical now—between the time that buds break and leaves fill out.

You can prevent insects from entering or leaving the exposed fungus mats on infected standing trees, cut logs, stumps and firewood with insecticides. Kuntz says that infected red or black oaks in lawns or parks should be cut promptly and then burned, buried, debarked, or sprayed with DDT. In a forest he recommends girdling black oaks immediately after the disease symptoms appear.

Open wounds on oak trees are an invitation to sap feeding insects. Cover wounds promptly with tree wound paint. Infection may occur within a few hours.

Farmer Feeds 26 People

Farm Output Up
25 Per Cent in Past 10 Years

Farmers across the country are continuing a job of producing more than enough food for the growing U S population. The U S Department of Agriculture's Economic Research Service estimates that farmers will maintain near record volume despite a decrease in output in 1961.

Farm output has increased at an annual rate of 2.5 per cent over the past 10 years while the population increased by 18 per cent a year.

Farmers achieved their record output of the last few years with the fewest acres planted to crops in the past 40 years. Stepped-up production per acre accounted for the larger yields. At the same time, farm output per man-hour continues to increase. It was almost 7 per cent higher in 1960 than in 1959 and has more than doubled since 1947-49.

During 1961 each farm worker in the United States produced enough food, fiber, and tobacco to supply himself and 25 other persons. A hundred years ago, the farmer could supply himself and only four other persons.

This staggering record of farm output means that Americans enjoy an increasing supply of farm goods for a smaller portion of their incomes. It also means that for the first time in the history of man, the terror of famine has been replaced by the problems of feast.

Increased farm efficiency has released workers for industrial production to give us the cars, refrigerators, houses, television sets, and all the other consumer goods that are such a mark of the American economy.

Acres to Manage

The U S Department of Agriculture has full managerial responsibility for 186 million acres of forest and grassland now nationally owned.

Consider Fox When Putting Chickens Out on the Range

The wily fox has withstood shotguns, hounds and poison, and still makes many a chicken's feathers stand on end.

According to Milt Sunde, University of Wisconsin poultry specialist the fox is still a main consideration when you're thinking about putting chickens out on summer range. You can save 30 to 35 cents per bird on feed, get a few more eggs, and make a restricted feeding program work better — if you use pasture. But on the other hand, if a red fox decides to make your plump, little chickens a steady part of his diet, you can lose more than you gain.

With predators in the area, you'll want to get the birds inside every night or erect a high fence. If this costs more than it's worth, then pass up summer range.

If predators are no problem, try short-clipped ladino clover, alfalfa, or alfalfa-ladino. Don't give the pullets as good a feed on range as you do in confinement. Pullets make poor use of pasture, if their ration is too good.

Mix 300 pounds of soybean oil meal, 40 pounds of bone meal, and 10 pounds of iodized salt with manganese. Also provide corn and oats free choice. But before you start on this new ration get the pullets used to range, and to corn and oats. Let them use the same ration and feeders on range for a few weeks before you put them on the range diet.

Dried Milk Production Increases 15 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Production of nonfat dried milk for human use totaled 774 million pounds during the first four months of this year, up 15 per cent from the same period in 1961.

Milk production during the last year has increased while consumption has dropped. This has resulted in an increase of stocks of dairy products.

Producers have turned over to the Agriculture Department under the price support program 1,275,400,000 pounds of nonfat dried milk during the marketing year which ended April 1. This was a sharp increase over the 837,000 pounds turned over to the department in the preceding marketing year.

The department on May 23, held 338 million pounds of uncommitted supplies of nonfat dried milk.

Broken Down Stalks Cause Serious Corn Field Problem

Broken down stalks were a serious problem in many Wisconsin corn fields last fall. A University of Wisconsin agronomist reports that farmers can help prevent this problem with the rate they seed the corn.

N. P. Neal points out that plant populations are one factor contributing to the stalk breaking problem. In recent years there has been a steady increase in plant density used by farmers. In many instances this far exceeds that recommended throughout the Midwestern states.

Neal says there are few circumstances in Wisconsin where a population exceeding 16,000 plants per acre is justified for grain corn production even under normal conditions. Often it would be better to use a lower planting rate, especially where fertility and moisture might be limited.

Stalk breaking is usually associated with the presence in the stalks of fungus organisms. These commonly invade the plant through the roots.

In 1961 a combination of circumstances favored stalk rot development. Stalk breaking occurred on all soil types, but was much commoner in drought areas or on shallow soils or knolls, sometimes approaching 100 per cent.

Neal points out that some hybrids are naturally more resistant to stalk breaking. Corn breeders strive to select lines with this quality. But even varieties that resist stalk breaking may succumb to the attack of the disease organisms if weather, soil, planting rates and other conditions pile up against the plant.
